Field Trip Travel Policy & Procedure

Due to the large number of field trips being taken and the concern expressed about liability coverage, a procedure has been established to assure proper coverage. The following legal opinions have been rendered by the University Legal Counsel in respect to the liability of faculty/staff members responsible for field trips:

A. You might be liable if you are negligent and this results in injury to a student.
B. Negligence can be:
   1. Doing something you are supposed to do but in a careless manner
   2. Failing to act when you should take action
   3. Taking action when you should not act and injury results from your actions.
C. If you are acting within the scope of your duties as a member of the faculty/staff, the Board of Governors will indemnify you and stand responsible.
D. You are not an insurer of the safety of students.
E. The mere fact that you ordered the trip or project, does not create liability unless the trip or project, or some factor thereof, in inherently dangerous and you knew or should have known this fact.
F. You have a duty to exercise reasonable care for the safety of the student under your authority. This would include warning them of known hazards or of hazards which would not be readily observable by the student, but should be known to the faculty staff member.

You should also refer to the University Manual which establish the University requirements. Attached is the procedure and form that is to be followed. Please disseminate this information to all faculty/staff within your Department.

The following procedure has been established to assure that University personnel are properly covered for liability exposure on University-sponsored field trips. There are three types of field trips which are considered to be University sponsored: class related, athletic teams, and recognized student organizations.

One week prior to a University-sponsored field trip, a completed Field Trip Form is to be forwarded by the Department Chairperson to: Anne N. Gregson, Risk Manager; 210 Flagg Rd./Suite 208; Kingston Campus. A copy should also be forwarded to the Academic Dean. If the procedure is properly followed, then the following will apply:

This procedure is based on the students being registered full time at the University of Rhode Island. Special and part-time students must ascertain that they have their own medical coverage. If you have any questions concerning this policy and procedure or any risk management and/or insurance matters, call or email: Anne Gregson, 874.2591 anne@uri.edu
