How do I get certified in another state?

Good news!

Rhode Island has reciprocity with almost all of the states in the U.S. This means that you are considered a highly qualified teacher when you receive your RI certification. You will not be required to take other coursework.

You may, however, be required to take other standardized tests to be certified in another state. Visit the Dept. of Education website in the state of interest to find out accurate and up-to-date information.

Here are some Dept. of Education websites for states URI students frequently apply to:

New Jersey: http://www.state.nj.us/education/

Massachusetts: http://www.doe.mass.edu/

New York: http://www.nysed.gov/

New Hampshire: http://www.ed.state.nh.us/education/
