By the way, we are not saying that money is everything, or even the most important thing. With or without higher education, the truly important things remain the same: Family and friends, work and kindness, strong values… all are worth more than money can buy. Still, there’s a lot to be said for a good education. The knowledge and skills that come with college can serve you well all your life--- and so can the bigger bucks.

From Maximizing Adolescent Academic eXcellence (The MAAX) Program
http://www.TheMaax.org