Friedemann Weidauer is the co-director of the dual degree program (German/Engineering) EUROTECH at the University of Connecticut with currently approximately 90 students. He is the faculty director of the EUROTECH Learning Community. He is a Professor of German Studies in the University of Connecticut’s Department of Literatures, Cultures and Languages with a specialization in post-45 East and West German literature and film. Recent publications include articles on Bertolt Brecht and Charlie Chaplin and on the Coming-of-Age genre in US, West and East German film.