Mark Rectanus is University Professor of German, Department of World Languages and Cultures at Iowa State University. He also serves as Co-Director of the Languages and Cultures for Professions (LCP) program at ISU. The LCP initiative is a second-major option for students majoring in the Colleges of Engineering, Agriculture and Life Sciences and Business. As part of the LCP program, he also co-teaches a course on "Technology, Globalization, and Culture" with Professor James Oliver, Anson Marston Distinguished Professor of Engineering. His research includes numerous articles and books on the German publishing industry, media, museum studies, and contemporary art.