

Editors for Hire - Rhode Island area

(Updated Jan 22, 2022)

The following list provides contact information for individuals who take on work as editors for pay. Any and all terms of the project and payment must be arranged directly with the individual editor. The Graduate Writing Center takes no responsibility for these individuals or their work. We neither endorse nor recommend any editor. Students are responsible for knowing and adhering to the University's academic honesty policy, and should engage editors for line editing only.

See section 8.27 (Cheating and Plagiarism) of the University Manual for details about academic honesty and original student work.

Name	Email	Education	Other Info
Damiano Consilvio	dconsilvio@uri.edu	Current PhD student at URI in English focusing on textual editing and the digital humanities; MA, English with textual editing concentration (Rutgers-Camden); BA, English (Rutgers-Camden)	Damiano guarantees a 48-hour return time on any documents under 60 pages.
Adrienne Jones Daly	adriennejdaly@gmail.com	Writing instructor and editor. Ph.D. in English, Specialization in Rhetoric and Composition (University of Rhode Island), broadly focusing on language diversity. M.A., Linguistics (University of Ottawa). B.A., Linguistics (College of William and Mary)	Adrienne is fluent in French, and has taught English abroad in Japan. She has been a freelance editor for 12 years, focusing on academic publications and EFL educational materials. She has edited dissertations and articles in theology, architecture, social work, psychology, music history, marine science, business, and philosophy. Adrienne is familiar with Canadian and American spellings and a range of citation styles.
Taryn Aldrich	taryn@tarynaldrich.com	MA, Professional Writing (Kennesaw State University); MS, Human Development & Family Studies (University of Rhode Island); BA, French Language & Literature and Psychology (University of Rhode Island)	Website: https://www.tarynaldrich.com/ . Taryn has nearly 10 years' experience in academic editing along with a background in university teaching and tutoring, educational publishing, and writing center administration. She collaborates with graduate students and academic faculty, university departments, and international organizations; many of her clients are non-native English speakers. Her editing work spans a variety of disciplines, including STEM. She focuses on editing scholarly manuscripts and dissertations prior to publication in addition to grant and research proposals, CVs, job applications, and similar materials. Her clients' articles have been published in a variety of top-tier journals.
Susan Williams	susanwilliamswriting@gmail.com	TESOL Certification, An Introduction to ESL/EFL and Teaching ESL/EFL Grammar, University of Georgia, Athens, GA; MBA Finance, University of South Florida, Tampa, FL; Bachelor of Architecture, Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, PA	WEBSITE: susanwilliamsediting.com I specialize in technical editing for non-native English speakers. I edit manuscripts for academic professionals seeking publication in top-tier, peer reviewed journals. I also edit personal statements for graduate school applications and the like. Some of the subjects I edit include finance, computer engineering, electrical engineering, architecture, physics, pharmacology, urban design, mechanical engineering, and geology. Many of my clients have been published in top-tier journals which is often a requirement for tenure.
Ashley Stamper	stamper.proed@gmail.com	Wright State University, Ohio: Certificate in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL); Master's in English Composition & Rhetoric with emphasis in TESOL/TEFL; BA in English with a minor in Spanish	Ashley has over 10 years of experience teaching English at both undergraduate and graduate levels in the U.S. and internationally. She has also worked as an writer, reviewer, and editor for journals and universities, specializing in work with ELLs.