

CHALLENGES

Diverse fields, methods and vocabularies create barriers to knowledge exchange

Not everyone who engages in inclusive science communication identifies as part of the movement

Limited diversity among early leaders could limit the potential power of the movement

Lack of formal curricula and training to build relevant skills and competencies and insufficient institutional support stunt effectiveness and impact