

Non-Solicitation Policy

In order to respect the privacy, security and comfort of all Library users, unauthorized soliciting, either in person or with printed material, is strictly prohibited in the University of Rhode Island Libraries. This includes the requesting of money, services, favors, goods, opinions, signatures, petitioning, interviewing (oral or pictorial), or selling of any products or service. For survey taking and other exceptions, which must be educational or university-related, apply to the Dean of Libraries or the Dean's designee, directly and in advance, for written approval.

Individuals who wish to place notices in the Library or on Library bulletin boards should contact Circulation at (401) 874-8635. Only university-related, non-commercial events will be considered for review.