Overview
College of Nursing at the University of Rhode Island offers a Master of Science degree with an adult-gerontological primary care nurse practitioner concentration. Its purpose is to educate gerontological nurse practitioners capable of providing primary health care to adults, older individuals, and families in a variety of health care settings. This concentration will prepare nurses to work across system levels (including individual, organizational, and societal) to improve health and health care for this population. Upon completion of either the master’s program or the post-masters certificate option, students will be eligible to take the American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Certification Program – Adult Gerontological Nurse Practitioner (AANPCP – AGNP).

Curriculum
The Adult-Gerontological Primary Care Nurse Practitioner curriculum consists of courses totaling 43 semester credit hours. Of these, 14 credits are in nursing core courses consisting of philosophy and theories in nursing practice, research, leadership, and role development. In addition, 29 credits in the area of primary health care and related courses are required. The program culminates with a written comprehensive examination.

Clinical Practice
Clinical practice is available in a variety of settings - hospital clinics, community health centers, health maintenance organizations, long-term care agencies and private offices in both urban and rural settings. Preceptorship on a one-to-one basis is provided by nurse practitioners. Students manage a patient caseload with increasing independence as they progress in the program. The practicum experiences are planned with the student, taking into consideration the student’s interests, learning needs, employment plans, and adult-gerontological primary care nurse practitioner competencies.

Part Time and Full Time Study
Students take 1 or 2, 3 credit courses per semester for part-time and 3 courses for full-time. Students may choose to move through courses in a two-and-one-half to a five-year time frame.
Transportation
A car is necessary to reach the various clinical practice locations in the cities and rural areas. A local bus service connects the University to most major health service facilities, shopping, and service centers, but the bus routes and schedules may not always be convenient for the graduate student.

Tuition and Fees
Additional information on tuition and a full breakdown of fees can be located on the Enrollment Services Tuition and Fees webpage.

Financial Aid
A variety of traineeships, graduate assistantships and loans are available to help finance graduate education. More information can be found on the Graduate School Financial Support webpage. If you are interested in requesting an assistantship please email gradnursing@etal.uri.edu after you have submitted your application.

Certificate Option
Nurses who have a master’s degree in nursing may pursue advanced preparation in adult-gerontology and clinical nurse specialty. A minimum of 18 credits (NUR 561, 562, 563, 564, and 590) and 500 clinical hours are required. Prerequisite courses for the certificate program include NUR 503, 508, 535, and 582. Comparable courses from other institutions may satisfy these requirements.

Application Deadlines
Your completed application package, including supporting materials, is due by February 15th for Fall start and October 15th for Spring start. Applications missing materials such as test scores, transcripts, resumes, or personal statements will not be reviewed. We recommend submitting your online application by no later than two weeks prior to the deadline which gives your references two weeks to complete their recommendations.
