5. REPORT OF THE CHAIR

a. Update on Board Governance Issues

Chair Cook introduced new staff members to the Board, including Interim General Counsel Peter Harrington, Associate General Counsel Lauren Jensen, and Associate Secretary Lynn Owens. Each staff member provided an overview of their work history.

Chair Cook reported that Board member Cecilia Rouse has been called to serve on the national level as Chair of the Council of Economic Advisers. She noted that Cecilia brought to the Board a great perspective from the academic sector, and she celebrated her success and influence on the Board. Chair Cook also mentioned the transition in leadership in Rhode Island, with Governor Raimondo being appointed to serve as Commerce Secretary. She noted that plans are underway to meet with Lieutenant Governor Dan McKee.
Chair Cook suggested that the Board identify goals to be accomplished during the general board session, to focus its time and effort on Committee objectives.

Chair Cook encouraged all Board members to attend the Plenary Sessions, emphasizing the importance of the session to educate the Board members regarding the research, scholarship, creative work, and career building taking place at URI. She noted that it is also a good way for the faculty, students and administration see the Board being involved with the University.

Yesterday’s Plenary Session included five research projects driven by amazing faculty:

- Dr. Brennan Phillips, Assistant Professor in Ocean Engineering, highlighted the work that he and his students have performed in the Undersea Robotics and Imaging Lab.
- Dr. Marcus Nevius, Assistant Professor of History, whose research interests include the history of slave resistance, slavery-based economies, and abolition during the age of revolutions, shared an outline of his book entitled, “City of Refuge”: Dismal Plantation in the Revolutionary War Era.
- Dr. Katharina Quinlan, Assistant Professor in the College of Pharmacy, shared an overview of her research at the George and Anne Ryan Institute for Neuroscience, including spinal cord nerve degeneration and neural injury.
- Dr. Matt Wei, Associate Professor of Oceanography, highlighted research being performed at URI on earthquake physics and nuclear monitoring.
- Dr. Elizabeth Mendenhall, Assistant Professor in Marine Affairs and Political Science, shared a presentation entitled “Global Ocean Governance”.

Chair Cook said she would be remiss if she didn’t talk about the role of the University and the events of the nation that we witnessed over the course of the last week. She recalled President Franklin Delano Roosevelt’s quotation, “…the real safeguard of democracy is education.” She said she was comforted by the fact that she is a trustee at a university that educates its students to be critical thinkers, and opined that if we, as a society, have as many critical thinkers as possible, we will protect democracy.

Chair Cook encouraged all Board members to attend the upcoming 13th Annual Academic Summit, being held virtually on January 21, 2021. The topic is “Antiracism at URI - Academic Curriculum and Pedagogy”.

The Committee was provided a high-level overview of management, computer systems and security. Specific details of certain high-level activities that have occurred on URI’s network were shared in executive session.

Vice President Snyder reported on the new research partnership with Rogue Venture Partners, a venture capital fund. He said the URIFAE and URI will be the anchor research partner with Rogue creating a blue ocean fund, taking advantage of an area of reputational and substantive strength for the University around ocean science and technology. Rogue Venture Partners has been thoroughly vetted by the URI Research Foundation. Vice President Snyder noted that the driving force of this partnership is to create opportunities to expand a greater flourishing of economic development at URI and in the State.

Provost DeHayes briefed the Board on the annual URI Progress Performance Metrics as reported to the State of Rhode Island. The three metrics, defined by the Performance Incentive Funding Act, are graduation and degree completion, workforce development (tying academic degrees to workforce opportunities for graduates), and mission specific to develop the University’s specific metrics. The University has shown dramatic progress in that in each of the fourteen metrics across the three categories, the University is showing positive gains. Targets set by the former governing board have already been surpassed. Board members considered reviewing the specific metrics during the June retreat.

Provost DeHayes provided an overview of academic efforts in support of student success at the University. Four presentations focused on academic advising, on career and experiential learning, on URI’s academic enhancement center (student academic support facility) and the University’s undergraduate research and innovation and launch lab initiatives.

In conclusion, Provost DeHayes reported that the Committee continued discussion on possible models for Board and Faculty Senate consideration regarding committee approval of new programs. He noted that much progress was made on advancing this initiative, recognizing the shared governance process. He commented that there seemed to be consensus from Committee members on a fair, appropriate, and collaborative model for reviewing new academic programs and academic structure changes in accordance with the Board of Trustees’ bylaws. No action was taken on this matter.

Chair Cook discussed the importance of transparency during these public meetings, while noting Board member Heenan’s suggestion to use the public forum to highlight Board activity.
Chair Cook reported that Committee members discussed the balance of work in each committee; it is possible that work may be shifted amongst committees to maintain that balance as the Board moves forward. She encouraged Board members to provide feedback to the Chair and Vice Chair on this topic. The Committee discussed the Board’s role in the presidential transition process at the University. She confirmed that the annual presidential performance review is not necessary this year due to President Dooley’s impending retirement.

7. REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

a. Fall 2020 Recap and Spring 2021 Update

President Dooley spoke of the transitions in state government, noting that the new Speaker of the House, Joseph Shekarchi, was a co-sponsor of the legislation that created the Board of Trustees. He said the University has an excellent relationship with Speaker Shekarchi, with Senate President Dominic Ruggerio, and with the incoming Governor Dan McKee, and is well positioned for the upcoming legislative session.

In speaking of the national situation, President Dooley shared the words of former RI Senator John Pastore, spoken during the height of the Cold War - “The sanity of America is the security of the world.” He noted that never before in our lifetimes has the sanity of America been so much in question. President Dooley asserted that the University of Rhode Island will stand, as it always has, for science, for facts, for truth, and against conspiracy theories, alternative facts and bending the truth to fit any particular agenda. He said that as a public research university, we feel that is a compelling and central part of our mission. President Dooley confirmed that we will use all of our capacities, intellectual, scientific, our teaching, learning, and service, to serve the nation as best as we can and to prepare our students to be global leaders.

Reflecting on the challenges presented by the pandemic in 2020, President Dooley stated that URI has weathered the storm remarkably well, and for many reasons, including its performance and the judicious use of its reserve funds, to making strategic investments, to continuing to improve the institution even when times are tough. He noted that over the last several years, URI has added more than sixty faculty positions, and enrollment and student success have grown substantially.

The President reminded the Board that for two successive years, the University was identified by the Association of Public and Land Grant universities as one of the best three institutions in America for degree completion improvements.

President Dooley remarked that the blended format of the fall semester was quite successful. He noted that the Faculty Senate did an excellent job giving students constructive and flexible options for handling grades. Graduation rates were high, and students continued to succeed and complete their degrees even in the current climate. The President said that the innovative J Term has become a major factor for teaching and learning at URI, and that applications for the coming year are strong, and include a surge in out-of-state applicants.

President Dooley reported that the recent low COVID-19 testing positivity rate at the University is an indication that the community is taking this very seriously. He noted that all students will be tested at no charge upon their return to campus. He celebrated the work of Dr. Angela Slitt in the College of Pharmacy, in leading a robust effort to develop and validate a saliva-based assay for COVID-19. URI will be setting up a service laboratory on campus, which will be a cost savings. The University is working closely with the RI Department of Health on the rollout of the vaccine and will continue its rigorous testing every two weeks.

In conclusion, President Dooley remarked that the University continues its efforts to revise the curriculum, having learned that students prefer synchronous online learning; faculty has adapted readily to new practices to benefit the students. He noted that URI is looking forward to a successful spring including blended instruction and synchronous learning. He thanked the great people who work in student health and student life, and the faculty, appreciating the work that they do on behalf of the students and the university.

Board member Ryan remarked that, given the efforts of the faculty and staff at URI during the pandemic, it is appropriate for the Board to send a letter recognizing the University community for the outstanding job it has done during this time. The Board recognizes and appreciates the work of faculty, staff, and students, teaching and learning in a different environment while remaining flexible, resourceful, and resilient to get it all done, and with a positive attitude.

Chair Cook celebrated the impressive work of the professors that presented during the Plenary Session. She thanked the President’s team for making these meetings content rich and meaningful. She mentioned the use of executive summaries for the more complex issues, going forward. Chair Cook noted that between now and the next meeting, work continues on legislative initiatives, the presidential search, follow-up on technology and security issues, the research-led investment fund, the bond referendum process, and identifying Board candidates.
