Energy Efficiency in Schools: Safer Buildings, Healthier Students

URI Cooperative Extension Plugged Into Energy Research Lecture Series continues Wednesday, Oct 28, @ 6:30 pm

There is strong evidence that building environments affect the health and performance of individuals learning or working inside. How has COVID-19 required us to re-examine our treatment of school buildings in relation to air quality, and how can attention shift towards energy efficiency and help schools reopen safely amidst the pandemic? How can we leverage energy efficiency in schools to create healthier, more productive environments that inspire students to join the energy efficiency workforce?
