Mentorship

Major Professor for various graduate students in Clinical Psychology at the University of Rhode Island, and have served on multiple Comprehensive Examination Committees, Master Thesis Committees, and Dissertation Committees for graduate students in the Clinical, School, and Experimental programs.

DEPARTMENTAL SERVICE

I have served on various University of Rhode Island committees, both within and outside the Psychology Department. This work includes the Task Force on Multiculturalism and Diversity, having served as co-chair of that committee from 2001-2003, and again on a related departmental committee dedicated to Inclusion and Diversity from 2017 to the present. I have also served on a wide variety of committees and groups related to the formation of the Academic Health Collaborate (AHC) or to various initiatives within the AHC and the Institute for Integrated Health and Innovation. I also helped organize, and continue to serve on, a group bridging the AHC with the Ryan Institute and pursuing the development and appraisal of interventions that may help slow, prevent, or reverse certain forms of dementia.
