

SECURE RESEARCH
Academic Department's Foreign National Deemed Export Compliance Verification
August 2017

United States export laws and regulations, including the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) and the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR), prohibit the disclosure, including oral or visual disclosure, or transfer of controlled technical data or equipment to foreign persons, whether in the United States or abroad. In accordance with this prohibition, the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services requires employers to certify whether a foreign national employee or student will have exposure to export-controlled technology or technical data.

To ensure URI's compliance with export and visa sponsorship laws, please complete the following checklist (one per person) to the best of your ability. If you have questions about the checklist or the types of technologies that are export-controlled, indicate that you require assistance. The Export Control Officer will reply. For information about Export Control at URI, please visit <http://web.uri.edu/researchcondev/Office-of-research-integrity/export-controls/>.

If the foreign national will work on a sponsored project, please enter the CFS number(s) here:
