Policy Statement

For reasons of safety, liability, health, and sanitation, no animals of any type are allowed in any building on University Property, with the following exceptions:

1. Service Animals as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendment of 2008 and the Department of Justice, Office of Civil Rights.
2. An approved Emotional Support Animal. An approved Emotional Support Animal is permitted as a reasonable accommodation to accompany a student with a qualifying disability within their assigned residence in accordance with the eligibility criteria based on the relevant provisions of the Fair Housing Act ("FHA"), 42 U.S.C. 3604(f) and regulatory guidance provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.
3. Approved research animals as used in accordance with the guidelines of the Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee (IACUC).
4. Agricultural animals used in teaching.
5. Animals professionally trained for theatrical purposes and directly supervised by show personnel within a controlled environment during performances or rehearsals.
6. Animals professionally trained for search and rescue activities or law enforcement while on duty.
7. Service Dogs in training accompanied by a qualified training handler, under RIGL § 40-9.1-2.1.
8. Trained therapy dogs supervised by mental health specialists during official therapy sessions.
9. Within Residence Hall Director Apartments within guidelines set forth by Housing and Residential Life.
10. University employees required to reside on-campus in residential housing (e.g., the President's House).

Animals on University Grounds

No animals of any type are allowed in any building on University Property, barring the exceptions noted above. All animals on University grounds must be under the control of their owners. Animals that are walked on campus must be kept on a leash and in no circumstance may animals be allowed to run loose. In order to protect the health and safety of others, owners must dispose of an animal's fecal matter into a proper disposal container. Animals may not be tethered to buildings, handrails, trees, bicycle racks, or other objects. Any animal found wandering loose on campus or tethered to University Property and left unattended may be impounded at the owner's expense or reported to local authorities. Animals left in an unattended motor vehicle are subject to the same rules and regulations if the animal becomes a nuisance or if the welfare of the animal is threatened. Any infractions or complaints should be directed to URI Public Safety at (401) 874-2121.

Service Animals

The University of Rhode Island recognizes the ability of persons with documented disabilities to utilize Service Animals, as defined by the Department of Justice-Civil Rights Division, on University Property. Employees, students, Affiliates, vendors, contractors performing work for the University, and visitors do not need to request the University's permission to bring Service Animals onto University Property. However, the University encourages students to notify the Office of Disability, Access, and Inclusion, and employees to notify Personnel Services in the Office of Human Resources, when bringing a Service Animal to campus to determine if any additional accommodations are needed.

The University may request evidence of the animal's current state registration and proper vaccination. In addition, an individual may be asked if the animal is needed because of a disability and what work or task the animal has been trained to perform.

Emotional Support Animals and Pets are not considered Service Animals. In addition, Emotional Support Animals are not approved accommodations for University employees, except those employees residing on campus (see below).

Emotional Support Animals for Students Residing on Campus

Students who reside on University Property and who wish to bring an Emotional Support Animal into that residence as an accommodation for a documented disability must obtain prior accommodation approval from the Office of Disability, Access, and Inclusion. Eligibility criteria are based primarily on the relevant provisions of the Fair Housing Act ("FHA"), 42 U.S.C. 3604(f) and regulatory guidance provided by the U.S. Department of Housing & Development in its Final Rule entitled "Pet Ownership for the Elderly and Persons with Disabilities" published in the Federal register on October 27, 2008 (73 FR 63834).

Once approval is granted for a housing/residence accommodation, the Emotional Support Animal must remain in the owner's assigned space and may not be taken into other University of Rhode Island buildings or into common areas within the resident's building. Please see further information on Emotional Support Animal accommodations at the Office of Disability, Access, and Inclusion website as well as in the Student Handbook for applicable rules on animals in residential halls.

Pets are not considered Emotional Support Animals per the Fair Housing Act ("FHA"), 42 U.S.C. 3604(f).

Pets and Emotional Support Animals for Employees Residing on Campus

Employees who are required or permitted to live on University Property (Hall Directors, University President, employees with short-term, transitional living arrangements) are permitted to have Emotional Support Animals and Pets on University Property, including within a residence, but must abide by all other terms of this policy related to animal control, sanitation, and building access restrictions. Allowable Emotional Support Animals and Pets may not be brought into buildings other than the assigned residence, including into any interior common building space.

Employees residing in residences controlled by Housing and Residential Life must but follow the appropriate HRL application process.

Exceptions

None beyond those noted above.
