Negotiation Workshop September 30, 2004

On a scale from 1 to 10, with 10 being the highest rating, how would you rank this workshop?	Why did you rate this workshop as you did?	What are the concerns that kept you from rating the workshop higher?	What suggestions do you have for improving this workshop?
10	Very good discussions. Good leaders, etc.	NA
10	informative; relevant information; open discussions; encouraged participation	none	incorporating how to deal w/various personality types; ways to assess your own negotiating skills
10	I have learned so much useful info. It was presented and applied so systematically & appropriately.	none	break into grps according to specific interests, e.g. salary, leave, purchases, etc.; Q&A of applied Real-world situations
10	I found it useful and valuable		Keep doing it
10	It was interesting, informative & provided many useful suggestions for negotiating	n/a	It would be great to have it be male/female balanced, but I don't know how you could accomplish that.
10	It's very informative and useful	N/A	cookies are too tempting
10	Interactive; good advice from all; good handout summaries of Issues & best practices		More tough negotiations issues; Career making-breaking like Marco and Thelma
10	Very good one. The only one so far I've not felt bored	The best one so far	no
10	Very informative, right on time, creatively done		Making it longer, providing some form or offering of one-on-one mentoring/ advising.
10	Good info, scenarios, interactions
9	excellent info. Examples; collaboration	Would have liked a specific example to act out	see #2
9	Useful information: Participation encouraged. Good Pace	No such thing as a perfect 10?	Get some men to participate. Their points of view would be valuable!
8	fun, non-threatening environment to discuss what are sometimes difficult topics (or topics abt. which peop. Rarely talk)		I was late so hard to comment
8	I learned a lot of new techniques, and it was fun, but not all of the info was new	I think it could have been longer & a bit more in-depth	Maybe some role-playing. More real life scenarios.
