

JAMIE MASLYN LARSON
RLA, ASLA, Principal

Jamie Maslyn Larson is an established leader in projects that embody the integration of urban transformation and design excellence. Over the last 20 years, Jamie’s design leadership on projects with complex politics, processes, timelines, and environmental conditions has given her a deep understanding of the critically important role of the public realm in the shaping of cities. Her award-winning portfolio demonstrates her capacity to execute long-term projects and her deep commitment to design quality at every scale and stage of the process.

Prior to joining Wagner Hodgson Jamie was a Partner in West 8’s New York office with a nation-wide, diverse portfolio that garnered many design awards and national and international press. She was Principal-in Charge firm’s United States portfolio, which includes some of the firm’s most signature projects, including Governors Island Park and Public Space project and Soundscape in Miami Beach, Florida.

Jamie lectures and presents at national conferences and universities and has been published in Landscape Journal. She is a member of the American Society of Landscape Architects, a Fellow at the Forum for Urban Design, and a licensed landscape architect in New York, Pennsylvania and Florida.
