UNIVERSITY OF RHODE ISLAND FACULTY SENATE March 22, 2018

Faculty Senate Curricular Affairs Committee Five Hundred and Forty-seventh Report

At the February 26, 2018 meeting of the Curricular Affairs Committee and by electronic communication, the following matters were considered and are now presented to the Faculty Senate.

SECTION II Curricular Matters Which Require Confirmation by the Faculty Senate

PROGRAM PROPOSALS

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES:

Communication Studies Department: (see Appendix A)

Creation of five (5) focus areas for the Communication major in the Bachelor of Arts degree program:

Create three-course focus areas in:

- Public Communication and Persuasion
- Media Studies
- Intercultural and Interpersonal Communication
- Organizational and Professional Communication, and
- Science, Environmental and Health Communication.

Students may select three courses to fulfill a focus area. Note that none of the focus areas includes required core courses (Com 202, 221, 381, 382 & 383). The focus areas provide students with a suggested sequence of courses that adds structure and coherence to an increasingly diverse curriculum. Moreover, focus areas help us suggest and link the curriculum with career pathways. Consistent with the academic strategic plan, it will provide students in the major with an opportunity to customize the major that more effectively cohere around specific career objectives. Lastly, a 9-credit or three-course sequence constitutes a concentration to be noted on students' transcripts.

Title: Professor and Chair, Com Studies

Phone: 874-4726

Email: kmclure@uri.edu

A10. List and attach any signed agreements for any cooperative arrangements made with other institutions/agencies or private companies in support of the program. There are no signed agreements or private companies involved

B. RATIONALE: There should be a demonstrable need for the program. Not a new program

B1. Why is the new program being developed? The focus areas are being developed to provide students with a suggested sequence of courses that adds structure and coherence to an increasingly diverse curriculum. Moreover, focus areas help us suggest and link the curriculum with career pathways. A number other universities and colleges also employ focus areas, concentrations and/or tracks.

B2. What is the economic need and workforce data related to the program? The proposal is not driven by economic need or work force demand, though it should help us market the major more effectively

- a. Provide information on jobs available as a result of successfully completing the certificate or degree: job titles, job outlook/growth, and salaries. Again, while the focus areas proposal is not driven by a specific work force demand it will help our students better define target careers in the marketplace. The link below provides ample evidence of the diversity and marketability of degrees in communication.

B3. What entities are advocating for this program? Was an advisory board used to develop the curriculum? Our external review in fall 2015 advocated that we develop focus areas as a way of providing structure and coherence to our diverse curriculum. The faculty in Com Studies supports it unanimously.

C. INSTITUTIONAL ROLE: The program should be clearly related to the published role, scope, and mission of the institution and be compatible with other programs and activities of the institution. The BA in Communication Studies is wholly compatible with the scope and mission of the university.

C1. Explain how the program is consistent with the published role, scope, and mission of the institution and how it is related to the institution's Academic Plan.

Consistent with the academic strategic plan, it will provide students in the major with an opportunity to customize the major that more effectively coheres around specific career objectives.

D. INTER-INSTITUTIONAL CONSIDERATIONS:

D1. What are the similar programs in the state and region?

- a. If similar programs exist, how is this program different or why is duplication necessary? Similar programs exist in communication and media at most institutions in the state and across the region, this proposal will ensure our continuing competitiveness. Communications is ranked as the 9th most popular major across the US (<http://inside.collegefactual.com/stories/top-10-most-popular-majors>) and having a better defined curriculum will allow us and the students to compete in a highly competitive marketplace.
- b. Have you communicated with other institutions about the development of this program and have any concerns been raised related to role, scope, and mission or duplication? No. In fact, we are losing many of our prospective students on the basis of not having a better defined program. We have the assets at URI to make this a truly unique signature program.

D2. How do courses in this program transfer to other schools?
They transfer like our other courses do, no new courses are being added.

D3. How does this program align to academic programs at other institutions?
No. But see D1 above.

D4. Are recipients of this credential accepted into programs at the next degree level without issue? Many of our students go on to graduate school as they come from one of the best undergraduate communication studies program in the northeast with leading national and international research faculty in media studies, intercultural and public communication.

D5. How does this program of study interface with degree programs at the level below them? Without problems, many students transfer courses in from CCRI and RIC.

D6. Are cooperative agreements or affiliations established? If so, what? No.

E. PROGRAM:

E1. Are there pre-requisite courses? If so, please explain/list?
The pre-requisite for the major is Com 100. Most classes at the 300 & 400-level have pre-requisites at the 200-level or require junior standing.

E2. Curriculum

- a. How many credit hours are required to graduate (include all general education and pre-requisites)? 36 credits in Com 3 credits of pre-requirements are need (Com 100), but it's a gen ed. course. Gen ed. requirements are typically 40 total.
- b. What courses are required for the program? Com Major requires:

(Com 202, Com 221, Com 381, 382, 383). No changes here.

- c. What are the new courses and descriptions that will go into the course catalog?

No new courses are being developed at this time as a consequence of adding focus areas. Majors may elect to declare a focus area of a three-course sequence via their major electives in the following areas (See supplemental doc).

- d. Are there specializations and options? If so, please describe. See attached document describing focus areas
- e. Is the program content guided by program-specific accreditation standards or other outside guidance? Communication studies programs are not accredited but typically follow the areas of specialization and standards from the National Communication Association (NCA). The college is already accredited.
- f. What are the learning goals (what students are expected to gain, achieve, know, or demonstrate by completion of the program)? Our learning outcomes and goals are already well-established and regularly assessed.

- F. FACULTY AND STAFF: The faculty and support staff for the program should be sufficient in number and demonstrate the knowledge, skills, and other attributes necessary to the success of the program. Already in place, need no further faculty

F1. What are the number of each needed? None

F2. Are these new positions or reassignments? None

F3. What are the minimal degree level and academic/technical field requirements and certifications required for teaching in this program? All our faculty have either a Ph. D. or MA in Communication Studies or related fields.

- G. STUDENTS:

G1. How are students selected for the program?
Com majors self-select; focus areas are optional

G2. Are there admission requirements? Students must have a passing grade in Com 100, 24 credits and a 2.0 to be admitted into the major.

G3. What is the primary source of students? Com Majors already enrolled

a. New students or drawn from other programs? Many of our students already come from other programs,

b. Industry sponsored students/ employees? Describe. N/A

G4. What is the estimated number of students in the program? 620-630

G5. What is the estimated number of annual graduates? 150-180

H. EVALUATION:

H1. How will the program be evaluated? Same as current assessment

- a. Performance measures to evaluate the program. More narrow assessment outcome could be developed to evaluate the focus areas.
- b. Will the program be accredited? If so, when? How? Our program is not accredited

I. WHAT SPECIAL EQUIPMENT OR RESOURCES ARE NEEDED?

I1. Special instructional resources and services needed? (Clinical space, internships, proctors) None

I2. Facilities and capital equipment? Already in place

J. IS THE PROGRAM FINANCIALLY VIABLE?

J1. ALL PROPOSALS: Complete the Rhode Island Office of Postsecondary Commissioner Budget Form demonstrating either

- a. the need for additional resources or

Budget report forwarded from A&S Curriculum Committee anticipates modest expenses associated with campus changes and auditing the graduation requirements.

- b. that existing funds are sufficient for carrying out the program.
Already delivering the program

The completed proposal with Budget Form requires review by the URI Budget and Financial Planning Office. If no new funds are requested, proposers shall request a Statement of No Financial Impact from the URI Budget and Financial Planning Office.

Original Catalog Description (2016-17)

URI's program in communication studies provides maximum flexibility in planning for a variety of academic and occupational goals. The curriculum is personalized for each student. Although the student will play an important role in curriculum planning, his or her program is closely supervised by an advisor. Departmentally approved courses provide diversity or a more focused approach, depending on the student's needs and goals. Courses outside the department that relate to the student's needs and goals are also encouraged. Students selecting this major may pursue studies in business and professional communication, communication theory, oral interpretation, rhetoric and public address, public relations, radio and TV advertising, and similar career goals.

Students must achieve a passing grade in COM 100 or COM 110 in order to transfer to the College of Arts and Sciences with a major in Communication Studies. The program requires a minimum of 36 credits (maximum 51) in the major, including COM 202, 221, 381, 382, and 383. The remaining credits will be distributed as follows: at least two courses (6 credits) of COM 200 level; at least two courses (6 credits) of COM 300 level; and at least three courses (9 credits) of COM 400 level. A student must maintain a 2.00 grade point average in her or his major to meet graduation requirements. Courses of independent study (COM 471, 472, 491, 492) and internships do not fulfill the requirements for the major or minor.

A total of 120 credits is required for graduation. At least 42 of these must be in courses numbered 300 or above

Memo

2 February 2018

To: Kevin McClure
Chair, Department of Communication Studies

From: Jeannette E. Riley
Dean, College of Arts and Sciences

Please include this memo as part of your program proposal for the program modification to add focus areas (tracks) to the Bachelor of Arts in Communication Studies.

This is to express my full support of the addition of focus areas to the Communication Studies major. This program change will benefit students at the University of Rhode Island who are majoring in Communication Studies. Having a focus area will help the students make sense out of the wide variety of COM courses and pursue related courses in other departments. In addition, having a focus area listed on their transcripts will communicate to potential employers or graduate schools more information about what the candidate knows. Strategically for the Harrington School of Communication and Media, this change will facilitate the development of interdisciplinary programs within the School.

I realize there may be an administrative cost in setting this up, but I hope that the institution would support this request for a program that will benefit the College.

BUDGET AND FINANCIAL PLANNING

Adams House, 85 Upper College Road, Kingston, RI 02881 USA p: 401.874.2509 web.uri.edu/budget

DATE: November 15, 2017

TO: Nancy F. Neff
Coordinator, Faculty Senate

FROM: Linda Barrett
Director, Budget and Financial Planning

SUBJECT: Proposal from Communications Studies, Focus Area

As requested in an email from Dr. Kevin R. McClure, Professor and Chairperson in the Department of Communications Studies, College of Arts and Sciences, dated October 31, 2017, the Budget and Financial Planning Office has reviewed the submitted documents related to the Proposal of a Focus Area of studies within the Department of Communication Studies.

According to the proposal, the undergraduate major will be offered through the College of Arts and Sciences, and will provide URI students with the option to declare a Focus area of a three course sequence via their major electives. This information will be important for students to self-select a Focus Area as an Option or a Sub-plan in the field of Communication Studies. Also, Dr. McClure has indicated that there will not be an impact to the existing budget, and can be implemented with existing available resources.

As part of the Budget and Financial Planning Office review process, we contacted Enrollment Services. As a result, it appears that additional resources of 100 hours of staff time working with the College of Arts and Sciences and the Communication Studies Department to reconfigure the degree audits for Communication Studies are required in Enrollment Services, and possibly the need for additional faculty to teach courses that currently exist but are not offered on a regular basis.

This is explained further by the Registrar of Enrollment Services:

In reviewing the courses needed for the various Focus Areas, the department and college should review the history of the offerings proposed and ensure that adequate scheduling of the multiple options will be made available to students. For example I found that COM 325, 334 and 320 have had very limited offerings over the past several years and are currently included as course options for 3 of the 5 Focus Areas. We do not want to end up in a situation where students cannot complete their chosen Focus Area because course offerings are not being scheduled in a sequence that allows students to complete in 4 years.

Thus, the Focus of the undergraduate major in Communications Studies, will have an impact on the Fund 100 unrestricted budget as it has been presented.

Please let us know if you require any further information.

To: Rebecca Romanow, Ph.D., Chair A&S Curriculum Committee
From: Kevin McClure, Chair Com Studies

Re: Focus Areas Evaluation by Budget and Planning
Date: February 20, 2018

Dear Professor Romanow, Committee Members:

Just a brief response to the Budget Office's report on the proposed Com focus areas. In particular, the concerns raised in the report regarding the "limited offering" of some of the courses included in the focus areas: Com 325, 334 and 320.

The curriculum in Communications Studies is large and dynamic and so courses may be dropping-out of the focus areas whereas other new courses may take their place. Moreover, there are numerous courses in each of the focus areas that are not offered on a limited basis and more than a sufficient number to fulfill the five optional three course sequences. Students will not be in a position of being unable to complete their chosen focus area.

In regard to the specific courses identified in the review by the Registra: while the Com 325 has not been taught recently and regularly it may very well be removed if the main instructor of the class continues as the Director of General Education. Nevertheless, there are a sufficient number of offerings in the "organizational and professional communication" focus area that are offered regularly for students to complete the requirements. The Com 320 is essentially a new course cross-listed with HLT that was only added to the catalog in fall of 2016, so it's not surprising that it has had "limited offerings." The Com 334 is on a rotation with Com 335 to be offered every 2-3 years. Both courses were added in fall of 2013, so again it's not surprising that they too have had limited offerings. The Com 335 was last offered in the spring of 2016, while the Com 334 is scheduled to be offered in the fall of 2018.

In regard to the cost of additional staff hours to reconfigure audits I hope that the college is willing to accept these costs as part of our usual business of updating courses and curriculum. I hope these comments resolve the concerns raised in the budget office review. Please let me know any further information is needed. I am happy to meet with the committee if needed.

Cordially,

Kevin McClure
